COMPREHENSION ® PATS

Dear Aunt Andrea,

I'm writing to you because I don't know who to ask for advice. I read your column every week, and I think you give very good advice. It's obvious that you really understand the problems that teenagers have.

My problem is quite simple, but it's ruining my life. I don't get on with my parents. They are driving me mad and I'm always falling out with them! I have tried to please them, but they never seem to be satisfied with what I do. Sometimes it gets so bad at home that I feel like walking out on them. I'm getting on well at school, so that isn't the problem.

I really don't know what is to blame, but I always seem to be arguing with them. I can't do anything right. I wish they would leave me alone. Whenever I go out they're really nosy_they want to know who I go with, and when I am back home. It isn't fair! I don't ask them where or when they go out! Last night, I stormed off because they were interfering in my private life. I have been hanging out with my friends for three months, and everything was fine except my parents, that's ít!

When we're on speaking terms, everything is perfect, but when we argue, they won't even let me talk to them on the phone or on the Skype! My friends got sick of this, and they dumped me! Imagine losing your friends because of your parents! I wish I didn't have friends!

Sometimes I wish I was an orphan! I do love my parents, don't get me wrong, but I don't know what I should do to make the situation at home bearable. I can't go on like this. Please help me! I don't know what to do.

Yours,

Desperate
