

Relative Pronouns & Adverbs

Remember this:

who --> person
 that/ which --> objects or animals which --> choice
 where --> place
 when --> time
 why --> reason
 whose --> possession
 whom --> person

We use "who" to refer to people, for example, "the man who gave me the chocolate is Anna's fiancé." Here we identify who the person was. "That or which" is used to talk about animals or objects for example, "everybody likes the T-shirt that/which you bought yesterday." T-shirt is the object and therefore we used "that or which".

The same rule applies for animals; "the long-necked animal that/ which we saw in the zoo is called a giraffe." Bear in mind that we only use "which" for choice, for example, "I want to know which team is the best."

"Where" is clearly used to indicate places, for example, "this is the village where I grew up." For "why and when," they are used for reason and time successively, for instance, "the reason why villagers leave countryside is unemployment." "I will never forget the day when Peter asked Laura for marriage."

"Whose" is most often used for possession, for example, "the teacher whose car is black is of Maths." That means that the teacher who has a black car is a Math teacher. "Whom" is used to refer to the object of a verb or preposition.

Let's consider this example, "the boss whom you had the interview with was my classmate."
